

David Cameron was Director of Children's Services for Stirling Council where he was recognised for an open and collegiate leadership style which involved staff and partners. He has a long history of involvement in school improvement as a Head of Education, Adviser and as a Teacher. He has been President of the Association of Directors of Education for the last year and has been closely involved in national developments in Scotland, particularly around Curriculum for Excellence. He has a reputation for being both motivating and entertaining as a speaker.