

Michael Kane is a Senior Manager in PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (PwC) who specialises in policy and research in the education sector in Northern Ireland and Great Britain. He has been with PwC for just over ten years and in that time has led a number of high profile strategic assignments including studies on school leadership and governance, the impact of ICT and school buildings, and reviews of the school funding system - the majority of which have been published. Michael is involved in running a Head Teacher secondment programme in PwC for existing and aspiring Head Teachers. He got married in July 2009 - to a teacher.